Jazz Lines Publications

Presents

INDIANA

RECORDED BY THE HARRY JAMES ORCHESTRA

ARRANGED BY ANDY GIBSON

PREPARED FOR PUBLICATION BY ROB DUBOFF, JEFFREY SULTANOF, AND DYLAN CANTERBURY

FULL SCORE

JLP-7783

BY BALLARD MACDONALD AND JAMES F. HANLEY

Published by the Jazz Lines Foundation Inc., a not-for-profit jazz research organization dedicated to preserving and promoting America's musical heritage.

The Jazz Lines Foundation Inc.
PO Box 1236
Saratoga Springs NY 12866 USA

HARRY JAMES BIG BAND SERIES

INDIANA (1939)

Harry James Biography:

One of the most exciting and technically proficient trumpeters of all time, Harry James left behind a substantial legacy of recordings and performances that continue to delight listeners to this day. Born into a family of traveling circus performers in 1916, James looked primed to live a life in the family business, performing as a contortionist as a young boy. At age 10, however, he began taking trumpet lessons from his father, developing a stunning level of technical proficiency by the time he was in his mid-teens.

Joining up with the Benny Goodman Orchestra in 1937, James quickly became one of the band's star soloists. Leaving Goodman two years later, he formed his first orchestra (featuring a young Frank Sinatra as its male vocalist). The band's greatest commercial success would come in the early 1940s, when it expanded to include a string section and focused on achieving a "sweeter" sound than most contemporary outlets. In addition to recording a number of hits, the band would also appear on-screen in a number of films during this time.

Despite a string of hits, James's bands were also known to have an experimental side. Beginning in 1939 with the rhythmically adventurous arranger Andy Gibson, to the harmonically sophisticated Johnny Thompson, and leading up to the bebop influenced arrangements of Neal Hefti, the Harry James Orchestra often challenged listeners to re-evaluate their conception of what a big band could sound like. James was diagnosed with lymphatic cancer in 1983, but continued to perform all the way up until his passing later that year. The Harry James Orchestra still continues to operate to this day, currently under the direction of Fred Radke.

Andy Gibson Biography:

Born on November 6, 1913, in Zanesville, Ohio, Gibson played violin and trumpet early on and performed in a variety of bands before settling in as an arranger and composer by about 1937. His first big break was being hired by Ellington, for whom he worked as a copyist, observing the orchestra of the man he would always hold in the highest esteem as the arranger he most admired.[1] He was next hired by Charlie Barnet, with whom he would work well into the future, specifically to write new takes on some Ellington tunes. No easy feat, considering Duke's pioneering originality, Gibson began to make his abilities really stand out by managing "...to retain the essence of the originals and yet make them sound just different enough to have his own stamp on them."[2] Next came Harry James, with whom he perhaps made his first really indelible marks on history. James had hired the 23-year-old Frank Sinatra in 1939. When James asked Sinatra to sing his first song live with the band, they had no vocal charts to use, so Frank called Star Dust and acquitted himself quite well. Following this, James immediately had Gibson begin writing what would be the young unknown's first serious, professional charts.[3]

His work with Charlie Barnet and Harry James often featured surprising rhythmic figures and articulations, especially accented notes, that would later become a hallmark of the bebop movement. His work in the late 1930s almost certainly provided inspiration for Tadd Dameron, with whom Gibson would share arranging duties for Count Basie in 1940. His harmonies were often very sophisticated for the time period and included upper-extension alterations such as 13(b9), 9(#11) and 7(#5b5). Perhaps from his study of Ellington's work, Gibson was also fond of using a wide variety of mutes and effects in the brass section. He effectively used this tonal color palette in background material behind soloists or to provide variations in melodic content; creatively framing the work around the painting being created by a soloist was one of Gibson's trademarks.[4]

Gibson entered the US Army in 1942, leading his own big band across Europe until discharged in 1945. He continued working for Barnet, as they were a fine match; both of them had their own unique styles and open-minded ways of approaching life and music. A colorful character, Barnet was quite forward-thinking for the time, integrating his big band before nearly anyone else, and moving toward bebop sounds quite early for a swing big band leader.[5] By the end of the 1940s, they both were yearning for new directions. Barnet semi-retired and never played music full-time again, and Gibson began focusing on R&B, eventually becoming music director for King Records in Cincinnati. He continued composing, with some of his best-known works being The Hucklebuck, The Great Lie, I Left My Baby, From the Bottom of My Heart, and Shorty George.

By the late 1950s, he was working in various styles, and writer/producer Stanley Dance tells a great story that shows not only Dance's reverence for the historically underappreciated Gibson, but vividly illustrates the true versatility this man possessed. Dance had been hired to produce what he referred to as a "mainstream" jazz record, and decided that one side would have a small group, and one side a big band; he and Gibson consulted and debated on the personnel, and then Gibson wrote the arrangement. It was to be a long blues, designed with the hope of capturing the intense dynamics and improvisations longer pieces sometimes inspired. Names included Milt Hinton, Dicky Wells, Vic Dickenson, the young Kenny Burrell, and the star of the show, Paul Gonsalves, who "rode on through" the "stormy choruses" "triumphantly," as he had been known to do.[6]

The young Burrell asked Gibson at the end of the session what it would be called, and Gibson replied, "Blueprint - a kind of design for what ought to be."[7] Following the session, Gibson had a rock 'n' roll studio date, to which Dance and Gonsalves accompanied him as curious spectators. Not enamored with the relatively new music that had been exploding across America, Dance was rather dismissive. Many rock records, he felt, "sound as though they were made in a tin barn with the minimum of forethought and care."[8] Despite this, he lauded Gibson's approach as being identical to the expert professionalism he had shown earlier in the day, paying precisely equal attention to, "routining, timing, dynamics, phrasing, and tempo" as well as recording balance.[9] He and Gonsalves soon left, not enjoying the music, but marvelling at the depth and breadth of Andy Gibson's abilities.

One of the defining characteristics of American music is the manner in which artists have continued to develop songs, ideas, and themes from the past as part of their own original creative pathways. From the earliest iterations of jazz in and around New Orleans in the late 19th and early 20th century that took blues and ragtime to new places, to Gibson and his contemporary swing era arrangers who constantly breathed new life and style into standards, to the bebop/hard bop/post bop greats who did the same in even newer ways right up to the rap greats of the '90s who combined some of all of this with funk themes to create an international sensation, the greatest of our musical figures always continue pushing the American musical tradition forward - toward what it "ought to be."

Gibson was apparently one for whom this was his seminal musical trait. His skills were sought out by so many playing in very different styles during years that were truly transformative in the American musical world. From his rare ability to re-interpret Ellington, to his writing the very first arrangements performed by Frank Sinatra as a serious pro, to his shift to R&B and authorship of The Hucklebuck (which was a transformation of Charlie Parker's Now's the Time), Gibson was unusually versatile. He was a definite part of the tradition of both making the old new again and pressuring the music forward. He seemed to have an innate ability to re-imagine great music of the past, as well as write his own new tunes. Moving expertly from jazz to R&B to rock, he illustrated how style boundaries are often not noticed by true visionaries; after all, Parker loved his 'with strings' records and was fond of country music.

Sadly, Gibson died of a heart attack in Cincinnati at age 47 on February 10, 1961. One is left wondering what the future may have brought from this restless, fertile mind during the coming years of continuing seismic changes in the music world. We will never know, but thankfully we do have many surviving arrangements that give a solid glimpse into this unique, creative musical mind.

Notes:

[1]Stanley Dance, The World of Swing: An Oral History of Big Band Jazz, Da Capo Press, 2001, Pg.231
[2]http://jazzmuseuminharlem.org/today-in-jazz/happy-birthday-andy-gibson/
[3]Charles L. Granata, Sessions with Sinatra, Chicago Review Press, 2004, Pg. 5
[4]Rob DuBoff, conversations with the author.
[5]https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Charlie_Barnet
[6]Stanley Dance, The World of Swing: An Oral History of Big Band Jazz, Da Capo Press, 2001, Pg. 230
[7]Stanley Dance, The World of Swing: An Oral History of Big Band Jazz, Da Capo Press, 2001, Pg. 230
[8]Stanley Dance, Andy Gibson, Arranger, Just Jazz 4, Souvenir Press, Ltd., 1960, Pg. 58
[9]Stanley Dance, Andy Gibson, Arranger, Just Jazz 4, Souvenir Press, Ltd., 1960, Pg. 58

The Music:

Although taken at a relatively brisk pace, this Andy Gibson arrangement of the old jazz standard Indiana is not overly difficult. Written for the Harry James Orchestra, it's a simple, but fun take on an old favorite tune for many jazz artists.

Notes to the Conductor:

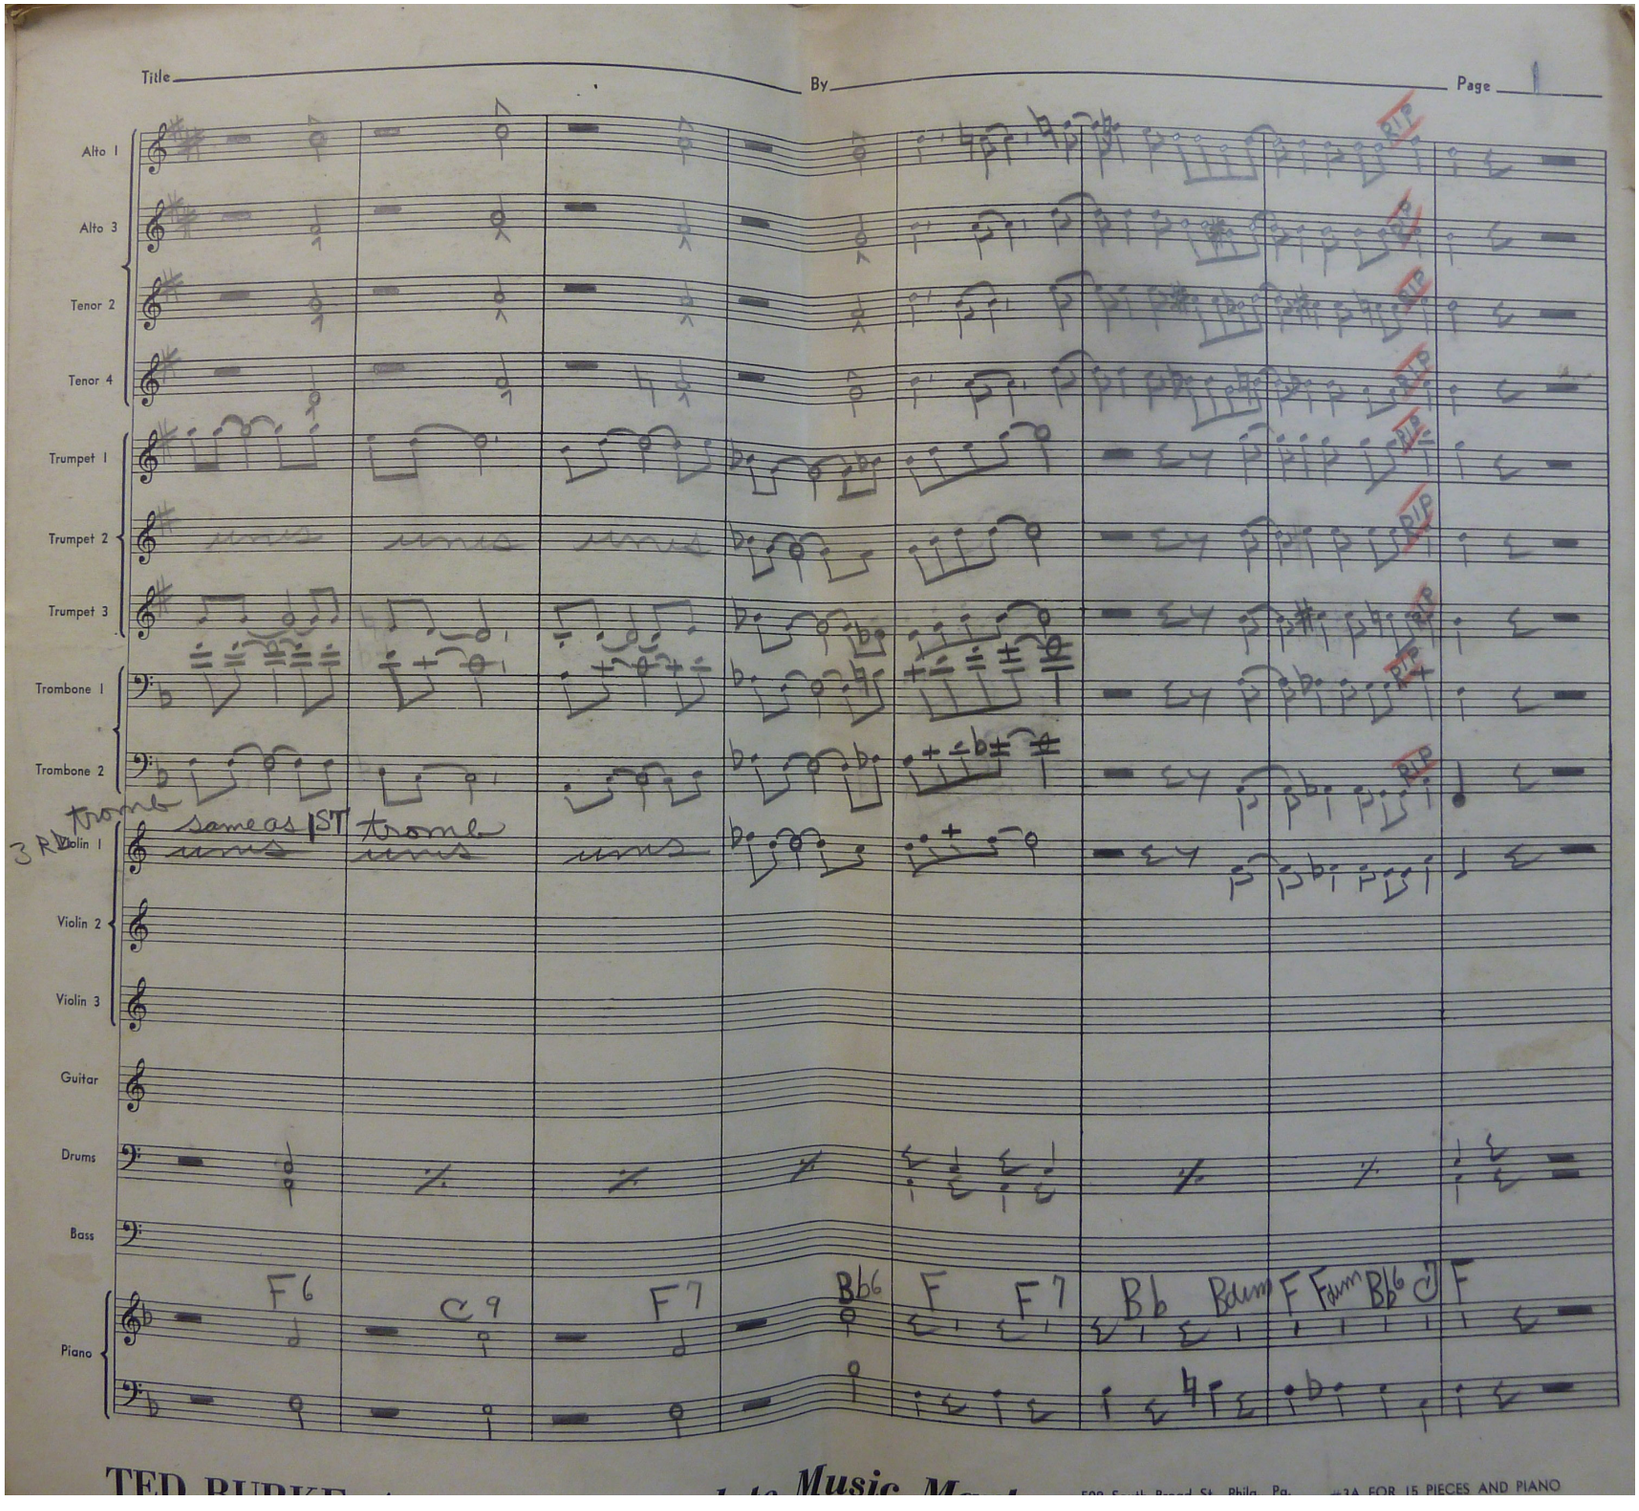
A cascading unison brass figure at the beginning is broken up by some stop time hits in the woodwinds and rhythm section in order to set up James's trumpet melody at measure 9. The backgrounds are exclusively in the saxes, and are fairly subdued and out of the way. The ensemble performs a brief send-off at measure 39 before opening things up for solos.

First up is a tenor sax solo with some simple but effective brass backgrounds for a full chorus. The spotlight shifts to a piano solo at measure 75. Make sure that your woodwind players keep their background figures out of the way to not overwhelm the pianist. A drum break sets up the ensemble shout chorus at measure 107. There should be a gradual sense of building excitement across this re-working of the melody before James comes in at measure 131. A key change eight bars later marks the ensemble's final push, with the horns and rhythm section riffing hard under James' soaring trumpet all the way to the arrangement's conclusion.

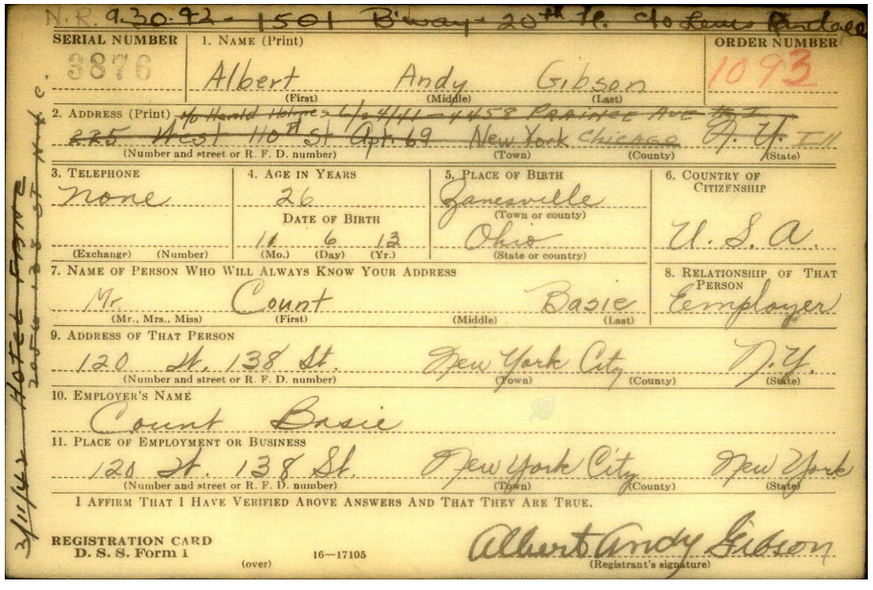
This publication was based on the original Andy Gibson pencil score - this is not a transcription.

Doug DuBoff and Rob DuBoff

- April 2021



Above is the first page of Andy Gibson's pencil score for Indiana, recorded by the Harry James Orchestra in 1939.



N.R. 9-30-92 - 1501 B'way - 20th fl. c/o Louis Bradley

SERIAL NUMBER 3876 | 1. NAME (Print) Albert (First) Andy (Middle) Gibson (Last) | ORDER NUMBER 1093

2. ADDRESS (Print) ~~c/o Harold House - 4441-4458 Lakeside Ave~~ 235 West 110th St Apt. 69 (Number and street or R. F. D. number) New York (Town) Chicago (County) ~~Ill.~~ (State)

3. TELEPHONE none (Exchange) (Number)

4. AGE IN YEARS 26. DATE OF BIRTH 11 (Mo.) 6 (Day) 13 (Yr.)

5. PLACE OF BIRTH Zanesville (Town or county) Ohio (State or country)

6. COUNTRY OF CITIZENSHIP U.S.A.

7. NAME OF PERSON WHO WILL ALWAYS KNOW YOUR ADDRESS Mr. (Mr., Mrs., Miss) Count (First) Basie (Middle) (Last)

8. RELATIONSHIP OF THAT PERSON Employer

9. ADDRESS OF THAT PERSON 120 W. 138 St. (Number and street or R. F. D. number) New York City (Town) N.Y. (County) (State)

10. EMPLOYER'S NAME Count Basie

11. PLACE OF EMPLOYMENT OR BUSINESS 120 W. 138 St. (Number and street or R. F. D. number) New York City (Town) (County) New York (State)

I AFFIRM THAT I HAVE VERIFIED ABOVE ANSWERS AND THAT THEY ARE TRUE.

Albert Andy Gibson (Registrant's signature)

REGISTRATION CARD D. S. S. Form 1 (over) 16—17105

3/11/42 Hotel Grand 2450 Lincoln Ave

GIBSON

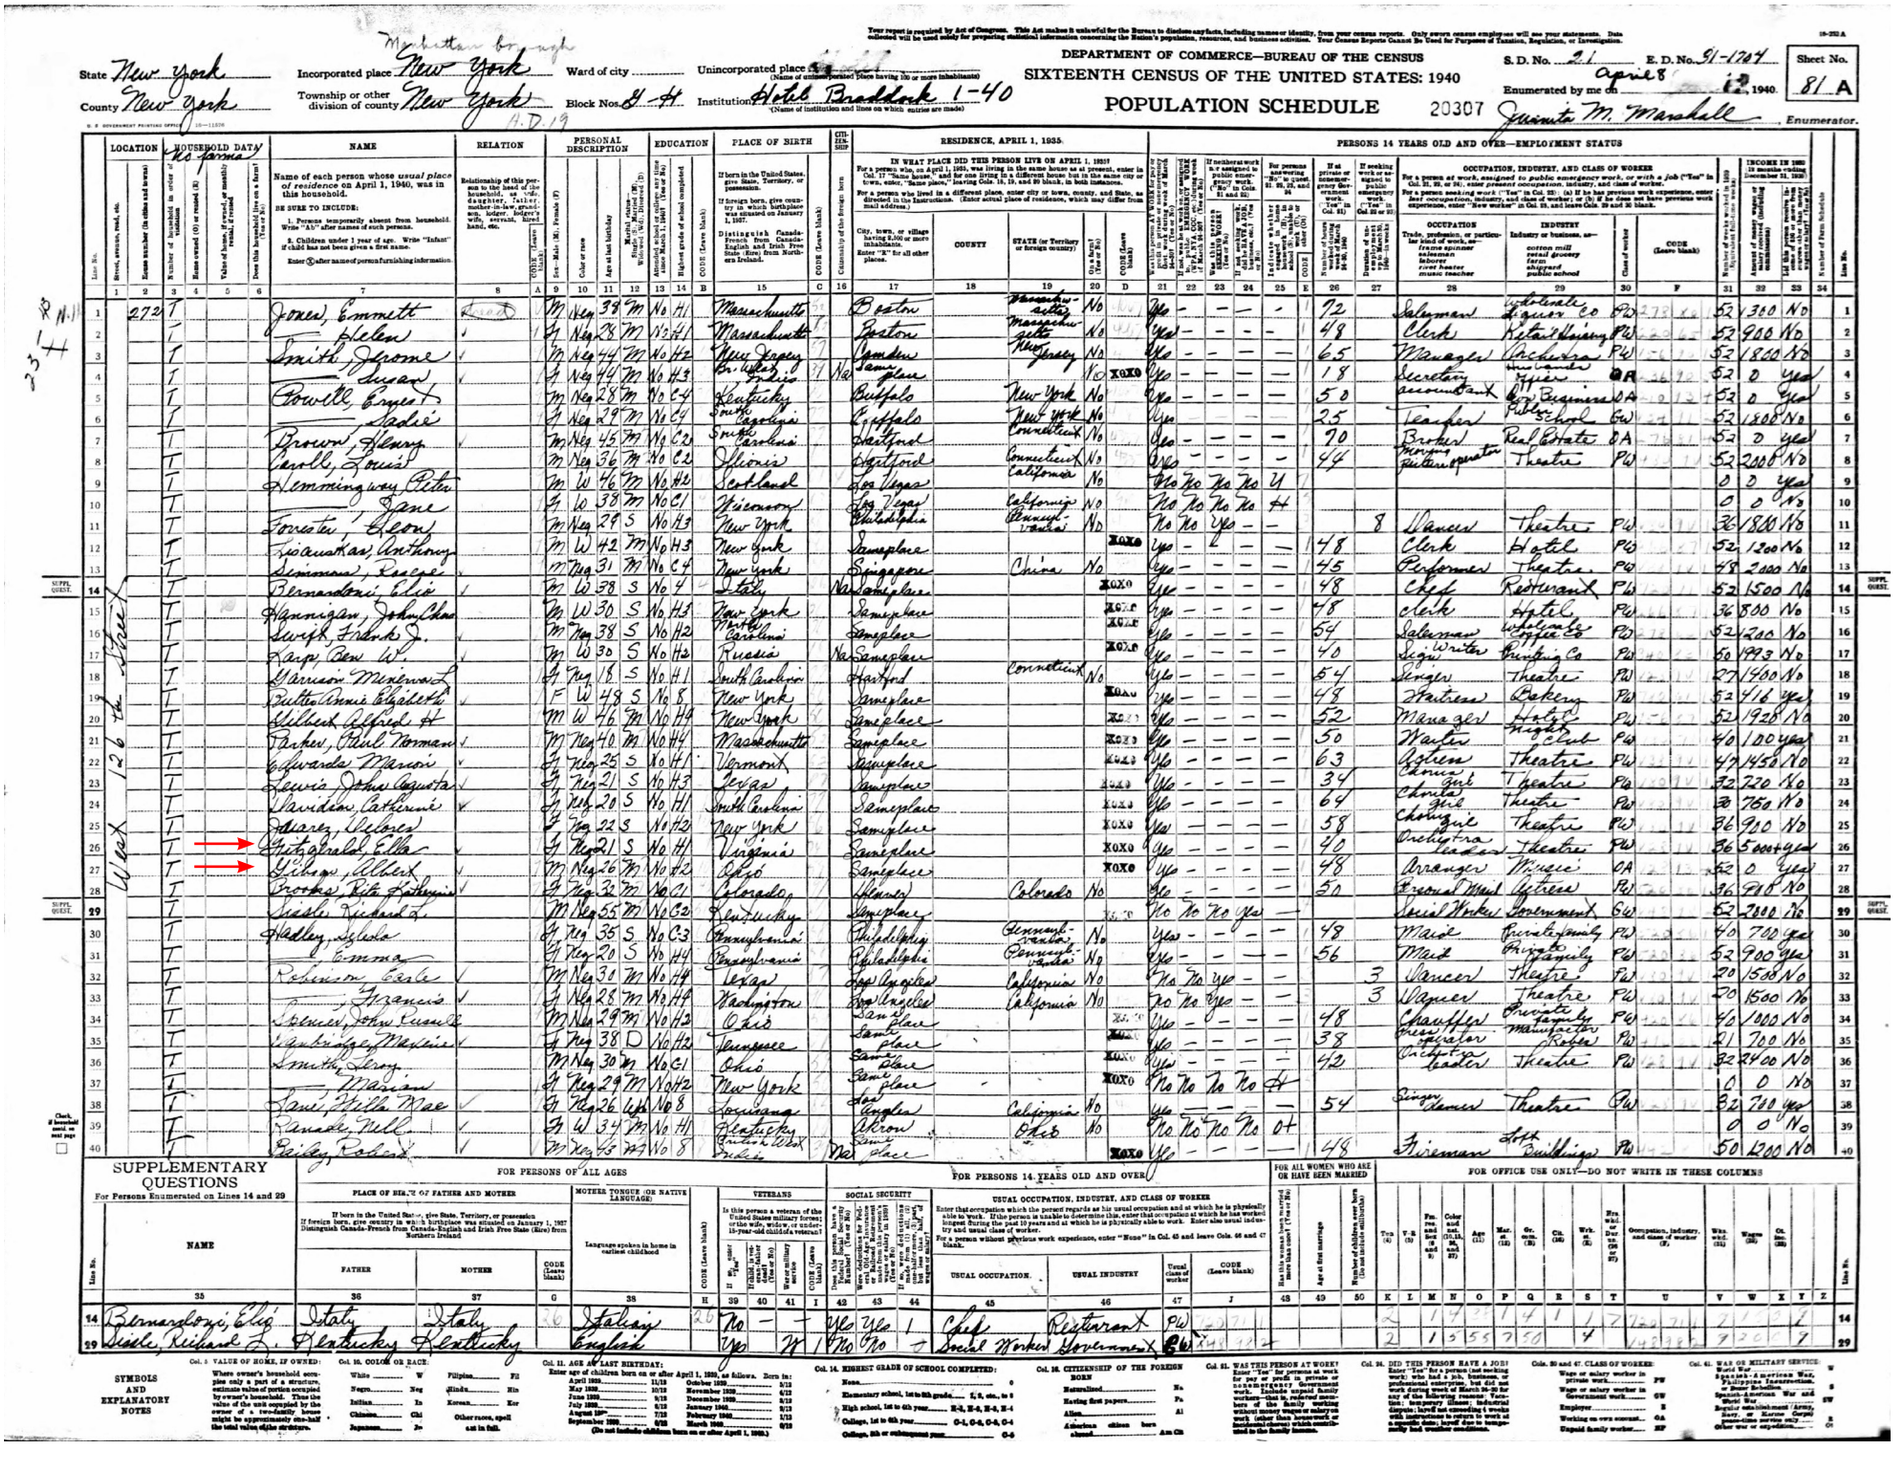
Albert (Andy); 3044 Victory Pkv., formerly of New York City and Zanesville, Ohio; husband of Mrs. Rose Marie Gibson of Los Angeles, Calif.; father of Albert Gibson Jr. of Los Angeles, dear brother of Mrs. Mary Cathryn Price of Cleveland, Ohio; suddenly Saturday, February 11, at Jewish Hospital. Friends may call at Renfro Funeral Home, 647 Forest Ave., Avondale, Tuesday, February 14, from 5 P. M. until 10:30 P. M. and at Hillis Funeral Home, Zanesville, Ohio, Wednesday evening February 15. Service Thursday, February 16, at 1 P. M. at Union Baptist Church, 8th St., Zanesville. Interment Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville.

Andy Gibson directing Camden recording date — Photo Bradley

Clarinets: George Dasey, Hilton Jefferson, Prince Robinson. Trumpets: Willie Cook, Jimmy Nottingham, Emmett Berry. Saxes: Paul Gonsalves, Leslie Johnakins. Trombones: Vic Dickenson, Eli Robinson, Dicky Wells

Andy Gibson's 1940 draft card indicating Count Basie as his employer (top left);
Obituary from the February 14, 1961 edition of the Cincinnati Enquirer (above);
photo taken by Jack Bradley during the 1959 Camden recording session (above right).



DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE—BUREAU OF THE CENSUS
SIXTEENTH CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES: 1940
POPULATION SCHEDULE

State New York — County New York — Incorporated place New York — Township or other division of county New York — Ward of city — Block Nos. 8 & 11 — Unincorporated place — Institution Hotel Braddock 1-40 — S. D. No. 21 — E. D. No. 31-1704 — Enumerated by me on April 8 1940. — Sheet No. 81 A — 20307 — Juanita M. Marshall, Enumerator.

| Line No. | Location: Street, avenue, road, etc. | Location: House number (in cities and towns) | Household Data: Number of household in order of visitation | Home owned (O) or rented (R) | Value of home, if owned, or monthly rental, if rented | Does the household live on a farm? (Yes or No) | Name of each person whose usual place of residence on April 1, 1940, was in this household. | Relation | Personal Description: Sex | Color or race | Age at last birthday | Married, single, widowed, or divorced | Education: Attended school or college any time since March 1, 1940? (Yes or No) | Highest grade of school completed | Place of birth: If born in the United States, give State, Territory, or possession. If foreign born, give country in which birthplace was situated on January 1, 1937. Distinguish Canada-French from Canada-English and Irish Free State (Eire) from Northern Ireland. | Citizenship of the foreign born | Residence, April 1, 1935: In what place did this person live on April 1, 1935? For a person who, on April 1, 1935, was living in the same house as at present, enter in Col. 17 "Same house," and for one living in a different house but in the same city or town, enter "Same place," leaving Cols. 18, 19, and 20 blank, in both instances. For a person who lived in a different place, enter city or town, county, and State, as directed in the Instructions. (Enter actual place of residence, which may differ from mail address.) | Persons 14 years old and over—Employment status: Was this person at work for pay or profit, or assisting in family business, on a farm or in a profession, during the week March 24-30? (Yes or No) | Did this person have a regular job but not work during the week March 24-30 for any of the following reasons? (Yes or No) | If neither at work nor assigned to public emergency work during the week March 24-30 (Yes or No) | For persons answering "No" in Col. 21, 22, 23, or 24: Did this person look for work during the last 4 weeks? (Yes or No) | If seeking work or assigned to public emergency work: How long has this person been looking for work or how long was he assigned to public emergency work? ("Yes" in Col. 21 or 22) | Occupation, Industry, and Class of Worker: For a person at work, assigned to public emergency work, or with a job ("Yes" in Col. 21, 22, or 24), enter present occupation, industry, and class of worker. For a person seeking work ("Yes" in Col. 23), (a) If he has previous work experience, enter last occupation, industry, and class of worker; or (b) if he does not have previous work experience, enter "New worker" in Col. 28, and leave Cols. 29 and 30 blank. | Income in 1939: 52 weeks ending December 31, 1939 | Line No. |
|---|---|---

INDIANA

RECORDED BY HARRY JAMES

By Ballard MacDonald and James F. Hanley
Arranged by Andy Gibson
Prepared for Publication by Rob DuBoff, Jeffrey Sultanof, and Dylan Canterbury

SCORE

Published by the Jazz Lines Foundation Inc., a Not-for-Profit Jazz Research Organization Dedicated to Preserving and Promoting America's Musical Heritage.

9
G9 G♭9 F9 E9 E7(♭9) A9 B♭9 A9 D7 A7(♭9♯5) D9 G6 D7(♭9♯5) G9
Tpt. Soloist
Ww. 1 (A. Sx.)
Ww. 2 (T Sx.)
Ww. 3 (T Sx.)
Ww. 4 (A. Sx.)
F9 (in 2) E9 E♭9 D9 D7(♭9) G9 A♭9 G9 C7 G7(♭9♯5) C9 F6 C7(♭9♯5) F9
Gtr.
Pno.
Bs.
Dr.
(in 2)
(4)
(8)
9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16

INDIANA

Score - Page 3